Local Crop Conditions Fields Need Rain

Raymond and district is badly in need of rain. A shower that revived the crops arrived Sunday night, but it was of short duration and high winds part of the time since then has robbed the soil of part of that valuable moisture. The nights however have been cool and nothing is burning, although a good three days rain would be about the most welcome thing imaginable right now.

Grain crops are standing up surprisingly well, and while no bumper crops can be expected practically every field in the district will make some crop, and in years like this the grade is usually very good. Some fields in spots may be cut for hay, but this is the exception rather than the rule.

Beets are coming on very well, and fields show promise of heavy stands, the tops at the present time commencing to spread, so that the field is a solid mass of healthy green color. Second hoeing is about finished, furrowing for irrigation has been finished in practically all fields, and with the application of irrigation and plenty of it, the beets are doing fine. Reports from Factory officials the first of the week state that taking the crop as a whole, it is ahead of last year's crop, and with favorable weather the yield should equal last year's tonnage. Damage from weevils has been negligible and while a second crop is due to hatch, no trouble is expected from this quarter.

Hay and pasturage is only fair. Wild hay will be a very light crop, and winter grazing will be poor unless we get more rain. A good crop of irrigated hay has been put up, and this commodity will likely bring a good price this coming fall and winter as the dry portion of Southern Alberta reports little or no feed being cut.

Very Successful Genealogical Convention

A very successful two day Genealogical Convention, with representatives present from all three Canadian Stakes, was held in the Stake House on Saturday and Sunday last, when topics pertaining to Genealogy and Research work were treated in a very interesting and instructive manner by the speakers. Keen disappointment was felt, and was voiced by those in charge, at the enforced absence of Elder Archie Bennett, who had intended being here, and who came as far as Coutts, Alberta, and then forced to go back because of the immigration laws being enforced by the United States. Archie Bennett is Secretary of the Utah Genealogical Committee, and an authority on Research work and his presence had been eagerly looked forward to.

E. P. Tanner, Chairman of the Taylor Stake Genealogical Committee took charge of nearly all meetings, and there was a good crowd present at all four meetings, as well as the Grand Concert on Saturday evening where talent from all three Stakes contributed to the program.

On Saturday morning Pres. Wm. R. Sloan of the Northwest States Mission gave a splendid talk on "Leadership" stating that the most important thing was the Spirit of the work if we had that the other essentials would follow. Mrs. O. H. Snow spoke on the book "My Forefathers," and stressed particularly the need of following up the "Things to Do" with each Lesson in order to keep the work interesting and win the certificate offered. Jack Galbraith took up the remainder of the time with faith promoting incidents from his own life which were very interesting.

In the afternoon meeting Mrs. Afton Keeler spoke on the "Book of Remembrance" and stressed the need of Junior Genealogical Classes to train the youth in this important work. Mrs. John T. Heninger gave a splendid talk on "The Specialist in Genealogy work and brought out a number of splendid points. The three Stake Chairman reported the work in their various Stakes, D. O. Wight, J. H. Green and E. P. Tanner, the latter stressing the successful State Extension recently put over when 612 endowments were given members of the Stake in one day.

Pres. H. S. Allen of the Taylor Stake was the concluding speaker taking for his subject "Pioneer Days in Alberta."

Chairman J. H. Green of the Lethbridge Stake had charge of the Grand Concert Saturday evening, when a very interesting program was rendered, with members from all three Stakes taking part. Vocal Solos were rendered by the following: B. E. Tanner, Wm. Sykes, Mrs. D. A. Watson, Warren Russell and Miss Bertha Smith, all of which were of exceptional merit. Miss Edna Nilsson rendered a Piano Solo, and the Stake Choir rendered two numbers "Land of Hope and Glory," and Kipling's "Recessional." Joe McLean taking the Solo part in the last piece. There was an Orchestra present which accompanied the Choir and also several of the soloists in their numbers, and which was greatly appreciated. C. F. Tollestrup, the Stake Treasurer put a great deal of time on this concert, and is to be commended for the results obtained.

Harrison R. McEwen, Editor of the Improvement Era, was a speaker, and expressed his joy at having been able to attend the Father and Sons Camp in the Waterton Park. "Man is that he might have joy," said the speaker, and the only way to have joy was to learn the law and receive joy through obeying it.

Dr. Hansen, Professor in Geology at the B.Y.U., was present, and at the conclusion of the program number, showed a series of slides of pre-historic natural history, which were very interesting, and with Professor Hansen's explanations gave everyone a greater appreciation of Nature's history.

Speakers Sunday morning were Pres. Palmer of the Lethbridge Stake on the topic "Interesting Children in Genealogical Work," Harrison R. Merritt who related many incidents in his family life, Professor Hansen who referred to the lessons in life that a study of Geology taught one, and stated that he had found there were no short cuts in Nature. Everything was organized for a purpose, and was working toward that purpose.

Mrs. W. R. Sloan, spoke on "Family Genealogy and Organization for Research Work" and related experiences to prove that much could be accomplished where the desire to do so was strong enough. Pres. Allen expressed the opinion that God does not do things in a hurry and everything has a purpose back of it. We are governed by law, and whenever we violate a law we must pay the penalty.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

When the Sunday afternoon session was called to order, the body of the Stake House was filled to capacity and many were sitting in the gallery. Pres. Wm. R. Sloan was the first speaker and after expressing his joy at being present and seeing so many interested in Temple Work and Genealogy reported the coming of the seventh Caravan from his mission which would number 400, who would go into the Temple, some of them traveling as much as 1,250 miles for the privilege. He reported personal experiences in his work as a missionary, and the joy he had in it.

Mrs. Louie Brundley of Stirling rendered a Vocal Solo. Margaret Kirie, a small girl of Macleod, spoke on what she should put in her "Book of Remembrance."

Elder J. J. Galbraith told the story of his Conversion to the Church.

Douglas Godfrey, spoke on "Young People in Temple Work." Mrs. D. A. Watson sang a Vocal Solo.

Pres. Wood spoke on the topic, "Enriching Our Spiritual Lives Through Temple Service," and related some of his own experiences in the Temple, as well as the experiences of others who had been there.

Bishop J. Y. Card of Cardston, and a Temple Worker spoke of "A Worthy Life in Preparation for Temple Work." It was for our own benefit and advancement that we measure up to certain standards in order to do Temple work and the speaker, as a closing thought to a very interesting Convention.

THE TWIN RIVER WELL AND RAYMOND

With the coming into production of the Roney-Norden oil well in the Twin River district, an old question is again brought into the limelight, namely the need of a bridge across the Milk River south of Raymond to serve the people of the lease country and also the ranchers and cattlemen to the south of us.

We are aware of the presence of the bridge over the river south of Magrath and also the one at the town of Milk River to the south and the one at the west end of the lease country leading to Woolford and Cardston. These bridges are all very well but it still leaves a great piece of country unserved, and because of it being unserved, it is largely untouched except for grazing, and the men who use it find themselves handicapped in the matter of travel to and from their herds.

A look at the map will show anyone that the shortest way to this country is through Raymond and south, over the ridge and across the river there and on to the oil well. If this field is to be opened up, a shorter road will surely be sought for the hauling of supplies, which will be a big item, and the logical thing is a new bridge so that there will be an outlet straight north from the oil field.

At present, with a great deal of travelling through Milk River, the first 25 or more miles takes one farther away from Lethbridge or other Alberta points with each mile of travel. For instance you travel 25 miles to Milk River town to cross the river and then you are about 65 miles from Lethbridge, or farther than when you commenced the journey. Around by Magrath the distance is not quite so great, but the question of roads is a vital one here. On the other route, when Milk River is reached, one is on the Sun shine gravelled highway from here to his supposed destination.

Now, with the well about 29 miles south, and a little east of Raymond, and this town about 20 miles from Lethbridge a journey of 50 miles from Lethbridge taking it as a central point would land one at the well. Then too the soil formation of the ridge country is such that high dirt grades dry very rapidly after storms, and except for low patches a dirt grade would be usable practically all the time. This is a point for consideration.

Were the oil well that is, and others that may be opened up there, the only talking point, then this may be a lot of hokey and hot air. But it is decidedly not the only point for consideration. There are thousands of acres of grazing land in that part of the country, at present under lease, and much of it by Raymond citizens. It means that when the journey is made by car, and that of course is far more common than any other way, the roundabout trip must be made, and when the river is high and fords uncertain, even with horses the journey must be the circle. Then too, when shipping time comes, the stock is driven to Milk River for shipment, and with most of the stuff going either to Eastern Canada or the Pacific Coast, this stock is farther from market when loaded into the trains than when they start out.

There is no question, either, but what if a bridge was placed over the river somewhere between the one now at Milk River and the one east of Magrath that a great many homeseekers would find their eldorado there, and the business of our town and district augmented by many thousands of dollars each year.

It is our opinion that here is a splendid talking point for every business man and citizen interested in the future of Raymond, and that through our Board of Trade, our Municipal and Town Council, and other organizations, a united effort should be made to bring this matter to the attention of the proper authorities and press for early and effective action on the matter.

Think it over. If we don't do it some one else will. Where in all Alberta would you rather see growth and development and expansion, than in our own Sugar City.

A QUEST THAT WILL NOT FAIL

The Disarmament Conference has adjourned for the summer. But the quest for peace in the hearts of men has not adjourned. It endures.

Half a hundred men sitting at two long tables in Geneva have gone home. But untold millions of earnest citizens in half a hundred countries are just as opposed to warfare and to its preparation as ever they were. They do not admit defeat.

The adjournment at Geneva has the merit of frankness. The conference might have continued to sit as if there were no underlying conflict of purposes. It might have devoted itself to further discussion of multitudinous technical details. This would have been camouflage. Arthur Henderson, president of the conference, has drawn up a list of fourteen points on which no agreement has been reached. His fourteen points, like those of President Wilson, are fundamental.

This situation should not be glossed over. It is better to recognize the fact in all its unattractive ugliness that the nations have not yet learned to act in accordance with the truth that their destinies are not separate but united, not antagonistic but harmonious.

If human logic could have solved the disarmament problem it would have been solved long ago. There have been torrents of apparently faultless reasoning in the conference halls. Every obstructive move has been defended by the strongest arguments of national self-interest. But only when nations are ready to abandon merely human logic for the spirit of mutual aid and comprehension will confidence—that confidence for which the people have been clamoring—be established.

It is futile to attempt to apportion blame for the present situation. Ample evidence can be found to convict every one of the great powers of contributing to the failure of the conference in the midst of an alleged armaments truce, what nation is not planning to increase its fighting strength? In parallel columns with news reports from Geneva are printed accounts of enormous military budgets being voted in almost every great Capitol Nations forcibly disarmed attempt to demonstrate their need of military machines. Nations amply armed authorize further military expenditure.

At the bottom of the Geneva imbasse are the belief that security lies in material force and the fear of being deprived of that support. When it is realized that there is an available power more mighty than artillery, more swift than airplanes, and more majestic than battleships, this fear will vanish. What man of any civilized nation, if asked whether he prefers to place his trust in the law or in a weapon esteemed deadly, would not choose the law? What nation free from the suggestion that it is not master of its own destiny would choose violence in place of peace and friendship?

The Disarmament Conference was expected to insure the success of the Economic Conference. It has not done so. The Economic Conference is now being asked to insure success of the Disarmament Conference: when it resumes in the autumn. But conferences cannot save each other. They must themselves be saved by a change in world thought and action. Obstacles to success in London are fundamentally the same as in Geneva. Recognition of world citizenship and acceptance of its responsibilities are the solution.

While Mr. Henderson now tours the capitals of Europe in his courageous attempt to reconcile conflicting viewpoints, he still has a conference behind him. For this larger conference to which every loyal citizen of the world is a delegate, there is no adjournment. It is always in session. Its members depend for their security on the only ultimately effective instrument of defense—"The sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God."—Christian Science Monitor.

Weekly Crop Report

July 6th, 1933

WHAT IS A MANAGED DOLLAR

Special from the Christian Science Monitor Bureau

Washington, July 7

President Roosevelt wants a dollar that will be worth as much in one generation as in another. This has never been true of any currency, in any country at any time.

The 1926 American dollar would have purchased $1.40 worth of commodities in 1931; $1.17 in 1917; only 65 cents worth in 1920; $1.03 in 1921; $1.40 in 1930, and today about $1.60.

How can business operate when its monetary standard of measurement is so variable? It is like trying to measure things with a rubber yardstick. Up to now, proposals to stabilize prices by managed currencies have been dreams of academic economists.

President Roosevelt now contemplates a method for stabilizing prices for good and all. He hopes to achieve this according to his intimates, by using the extraordinary power given him by Congress to reduce the amount of gold in the dollar by as much as 50 per cent. How would this be done? Simply by varying the gold content of the dollar. If prices got too high more gold would be added. If prices got too low, gold would be taken away.

In the past the dollar has been fixed in its content of gold, but variable in its purchasing power. By the new scheme the dollar would be fixed in its purchasing power but variable in its gold content.

What should be taken as the "fair" price for the dollar? Obviously some arbitrary figure must be selected. The Labor Department issues a table showing weekly price changes of some 750 commodities. From this table an average figure is computed called the "commodity price index."

It is proposed to hitch the "managed dollar" to this commodity price index. Gold would be added or subtracted from the dollar as this index tended to go up or down. Thus the dollar would be manipulated.

Search is now under way for Jimmie Mattern, round the world flier, who is lost but believed alive somewhere in the wastes of the Arctic. Nome will be the base for the search parties.

WOOD-SUGAR FACTORY ERECTED IN GERMANY

Professor Bergius's system for making sugar out of wood has found its first complete practical realization in a factory erected at Mannheim-Rheinau, which will be followed by others on the same model in other lands.

German scientific opinion tends to the belief that the original laboratory experiments have reached the stage which puts a new cheap foodstuff within reach of the masses. The wood is ground very finely, dried out and treated with highly concentrated hydrochloric acid.

This is the elementary stage of the sugar, which can be used as fodder in this form, but is capable of being refined to an almost unbelievable extent and at the same time produces such by-products as can be compressed and used for fuel.

damaged in some districts by rain. Tomatoes will be later than usual, but are making good progress and the yield will be above average. Potatoes are doing well, shipments will commence this week. Tree fruits continue in good condition, but the yield will be below average. Strawberries have suffered through lack of sunshine and the general yield of raspberries will be light. A heavy yield of hops is expected. Fine weather is essential to bring crops to maturity. There is ample feed on the ranges.

Local Retailers

You Have Rights

You know that a manufacturer includes in the selling price of his product a percentage for press advertising—a percentage ranging from 3 to 5 per cent—sometimes, even more—when consumer-resistance is great or when the gross profit margin is very large. So, when a manufacturer spends $50,000 a year on press advertising, it can be assumed that the total annual sales of his product amount to from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

Now, if you are stocking a nationally-advertised product — advertised in big-city dailies and in nationally circulated magazines, you have a right to see this product also being locally advertised—in this newspaper. Your total annual sales of the maker's product, joined to those of its other local distributors (if there are others), entitle you to demand that the product be locally advertised in this newspaper.

If the maker or his representative talks to you about the advertising being done for the product in big-city dailies and in national magazines, tell him that upwards of 90 per cent. of the families in your sales territory do not subscribe to a big-city daily or to a national magazine; and that, therefore, he is putting on YOUR shoulders the burden of creating and maintaining sales.

Clearly, it is not RIGHT that you should be required to promote the sale of a product in the territory served by this newspaper, without receiving from the manufacturer the same kind and degree of sales assistance which he is giving retailers resident in cities where he is spending a lot of money on local advertising.

Quite too often manufacturers don't want to advertise in local weekly newspapers, saying that it costs too much. They forget, however, that their sales in towns served by weekly newspapers provide an advertising fund which should be spent locally. Why should the contributions from local sales to the maker's advertising fund be spent outside the local sales territory?

You have your business to build up, and to the extent that you help manufacturers to obtain and retain sales in this territory, to that extent you should receive local advertising assistance.

You've got a first-class case to put before manufacturers who want you to stock and push the sales of their product, then why not present it, either direct, or through the maker's representative when he calls?

(N.B.—CUT OUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT, AND SHOW IT TO THE REPRESENTATIVE OF FIRMS WHOSE PRODUCTS YOU ARE ASKED TO STOCK AND PUSH).
